THE HORSES ARE COMING!

MARK YOUR CALENDARS FOR THE EARA AWARDS!

Again this year EARA is hosting a dinner and awards ceremony. It will be held in conjunction with opening day, Saturday May 17 at the White Clay Creek Country Club. This event is sponsored by EARA so there is no cost to you. This is EARA's way of recognizing everyone who helps make Arabian racing possible at Delaware Park. You'll be at the races anyway so why not take advantage of a free dinner and come over to the Country Club after the Arabian race. Cocktail hour will begin 30 minutes following the last race with dinner and awards afterwards. Please RSVP to EARA1@aol.com by May 10. We need to be able to give the Country Club an accurate count.

QUICK TIPS FOR FEEDING YOUNG HORSES

*Reprinted with permission. Dr. Debra Powell
(www.hoofandpawtherapeutics.com)*

I. Balanced Diet

The most critical aspects of feeding young horses is to ensure they are getting enough good quality protein, vitamins, and minerals in the correct amounts and proportions. Protein is needed for growth, muscle and cell development. Vitamins and minerals are important for cartilage and bone. Choose a young stock mix specially formulated to meet the requirements and follow the manufacturer's guidelines.

II. Stay Away from the F-Word

When it comes to feeding young horses, it is important to avoid letting them get fat by over-feeding. Overweight young stock are at greater risk of health problems later in life and at risk of developmental problems in the short-term. Watch your youngsters weight and make sure you are feeding them the correct amount of feed. A livestock scale is ideal, though not practical for many, and weight tapes are designed for adults not young stock, so ask for advice from your equine nutritionist. It is also recommended that you body condition score your young horse on a regular basis.

III. Quality Forage

Foals begin to pick up forage at an early age so try to stick to a high quality hay as it is easier on a young horse's digestive system. If your youngster is more of an easy-keeper, it may be necessary to choose a hay that has a lower caloric content. Because forage represents a significant portion of the diet, having your hay analyzed is a recommended way to ensure you are providing your young horses with what they need.

IV. Avoid Over-Supplementing

Beware of over-supplementing your youngster. A high quality forage diet combined with a vitamin and mineral balancer will usually meet or exceed the required nutrients needed for young stock. Nutritional supplements are exactly that "supplements". They are designed to complement something that is lacking in the current diet. Adding a supplement to a current diet may actually unbalance the diet if you are unsure of what you are supplementing. Consult your equine nutritionist before adding any supplement to a young horse's diet.

ONCE UPON A TIME...

Delaware Park was an idea. Then construction began to make it a reality. This photo, taken in 1937, shows the grandstand under construction. While much more has been added over the years, the track, grandstand and paddock remain basically the same.
